- be married to you or live with you on a genuine domestic basis (including de facto), and
- be under age 75¹.

¹ If they're 75 or older, contributions must be received no later than 28 days after the end of the month that they turned 75.

The Government limits the amount you can contribute to super. If you go over the limits, you may pay extra tax. Find out how much you can contribute at australiansuper.com/ContributionLimits

² We're authorised under super law to collect, use and disclose your Tax File Number (TFN). It's optional to provide your TFN but if we have it, we'll be able to accept all types of contributions from you, you won't pay more tax than you need to and it'll be easier to find your super. If you transfer your super to another fund, we'll give them your TFN unless you tell us not to in writing. We will need your TFN in order for us to process spouse contributions. If you have already provided your TFN, you do not need to provide it again.

Tax offset

A tax offset of up to $540 may be available for up to $3,000 of superannuation contributions made by a taxpayer on behalf of a non-working or low income spouse. Note: any contributions you split from your super account to your spouse are exempt from the tax offset.

The offset is available if:

- you make after-tax (i.e. not salary sacrifice) contributions on behalf of your spouse; and
- you and your spouse are Australian residents for tax purposes and living together when the contribution is made; and

- your spouse's total income including assessable income (disregarding released amounts under the First Home Super Saver scheme), reportable fringe benefits and salary sacrifice amounts is less than $40,000; and
- your spouse has not exceeded their non-concessional contributions cap for the current financial year; and
- your spouse did not have a total super balance of $1.9m or more immediately before the start of the financial year the contribution was made.

Contributions

Spouse contributions are treated as non-concessional contributions and form part of your spouse's non-concessional contributions cap. See the Tax and super fact sheet at australiansuper.com/TaxGuide

Preservation

Spouse contributions must be preserved as follows:

- if the receiving spouse has never been employed, then any benefits arising from spouse contributions are generally preserved until age 65. Contributions made to your spouse's super are subject to preservation rules. This means they generally cannot access contributions until they meet a condition of release.
