Claiming a tax deduction for personal super contributions

You may be able to claim a tax deduction for any personal super contributions on your next income tax return.

Am I eligible to claim a tax deduction?

You can claim a tax deduction for your personal contributions if:

- You have not opened an account based pension using part or all of the contributions for which you intend to claim a tax deduction
- You're a member of AustralianSuper and your contributions are still in your super account
- You haven't lodged an application to split the contribution for which you intend to claim a deduction (this must be done after you give us your notice of intent to claim a deduction), and
- The contributions have not been released under the First Home Super Saver (FHSS) scheme.

Limits on what you can claim

You can't claim a tax deduction for:

- contributions paid by your employer from your before-tax income (including superannuation guarantee and salary sacrificing)
- re-contribution of COVID-19 early release of superannuation amounts
- super you transfer from one fund to another (including an overseas super fund)
- · contributions you split with your spouse
- super contributions you transfer to start an account based pension
- FHSS amounts that you have re-contributed to your super account, or
- contributions that are identified as downsizer contributions.

If you're 75 or older, you can't claim a deduction for personal contributions you made more than 28 days after the month you turned 75. If you're under 18 at the end of the income year in which you made a personal contribution, you can only claim a deduction for your personal contribution if you also earned income as an employee or a business operator during the year you want to claim the deduction.

From 1 July 2022, if you're aged under 75, you can add to super by making personal contributions. You no longer have to meet the work test criteria or work test exemption.

However, if you're over 67 and under 75 years old and looking to claim a tax deduction for your personal contributions, you'll still need to meet the work test or work test exemption.

For full eligibility criteria refer to the ATO website.

When to claim

Once you make a contribution, you have until the earlier of:

- the date you submit your tax return, or
- the end of the following financial year in which the personal contributions were made, to claim your tax deduction.

Example:

Jane contributes $4,000 to her super Jane sends her tax deduction claim form to AustralianSuper

Jane submits her tax return

30 April 1 July

30 June

Jane must submit her claim for a tax deduction before the earlier of lodging her tax return and 30 June of the following financial year in which the personal contributions were made.

Dinah is self-employed and can claim a tax deduction

Dinah is a self-employed cleaner and earns $55,000 each year as a sole trader. She made a personal contribution of $10,000 to her super. Dinah also earns $5,000 each year working as an employee for another cleaning company and decides to contribute this full amount to super.

Dinah can claim all of her personal contributions ($15,000 in total) as a tax deduction up to her concessional cap, which is $30,000. She notifies her super fund that she intends to claim a deduction and includes the tax deduction as part of her tax return.

Eric works part-time and is eligible for a tax deduction

Eric is 30 and decides to start his own business. While he gets his business up and running, he continues working part-time in an accounting firm where he earns $10,000 and receives $1,150 employer super contributions. In his first year, his business earns him $80,000.

Eric can claim a tax deduction up to his concessional cap, which is $30,000, so he decides to make a $15,000 personal contribution to super. He notifies his super fund that he intends to claim a deduction and includes the tax deduction as part of his tax return.

Can I change the amount I wish to claim as a tax deduction?

Yes. You'll need to complete section 3 of the Notice of intent to claim a tax deduction for personal super contributions form to reduce the amount claimed on your previous notice. If you don't want to claim any of your personal contributions, you'll need to reduce your claim amount to zero. Alternatively, you may want to provide a second notice specifying the additional amount you want to claim.

When can I reduce the amount I wish to claim as a tax deduction?

You can apply to reduce your claim amount if:

- you have not yet lodged your income tax return and it is on or before 30 June in the financial year following the year you made the contribution, or
- the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) have disallowed your claim for a deduction and you are applying to reduce the amount claimed as a deduction by the amount that the ATO disallowed.

Making a partial claim

If you transfer some of your super to another fund or take part of it in cash, you could still be able to claim a partial tax deduction for the personal contributions that are left in your super account. Getting financial advice before you transfer any of your super could help you make the most of the tax benefits that may be available. For help, contact the ATO on 13 10 20 or your tax adviser.

Tax on your personal contributions

Once you advise AustralianSuper of your intention to claim a deduction for your personal contributions, AustralianSuper is required to deduct 15% tax from those contributions.

Claiming your contributions as a tax deduction could reduce the amount of tax you need to pay on your income. So, depending on your personal tax rate, you may pay less tax overall.

If you claim a deduction on all of your personal contributions, you won't be eligible for Government co-contributions. If you only claim on some personal contributions, you may still be eligible.

Minimum ongoing balance requirements

If you have invested in Member Direct you will need to ensure you have enough funds available in AustralianSuper to enable the 15% tax deduction to be applied and to retain the minimum balance requirement of $5,000 in AustralianSuper's other investment options (that is, excluding Member Direct) and $10,000 balance across all investment options (that is, including Member Direct).

Contribution limits

The Government limits the amount you can contribute to super. If you exceed the limits you may pay extra tax. For more information visit australiansuper.com/ContributionLimits

How to claim a tax deduction

Online

Step 1

Log in to your account at australiansuper.com/login You can register for online access to your account if you don't currently have it.

Step 2

Click Account in the navigation menu and select Online forms.

Step 3

Under Start an online form, select Claim a tax deduction and complete the form.

Step 4

Follow the steps provided in the online form.

When you submit your form, you'll receive a confirmation that we've processed your request and will be notifying the ATO. In some instances, requests may take up to five business days to process including where you vary an existing claim or if you are eligible to vary a tax deduction claim for a contribution made more than two financial years ago.

Step 5

Submit your tax return. You'll need to state the amount you want to claim as a tax deduction in the supplementary section of your tax return.

PDF form

Step 1

Complete the Notice of intent to claim a tax deduction for personal super contributions form attached to this fact sheet. This tells us the amount you want to claim.

Step 2

Send the form to AustralianSuper by post or upload it via our website at australiansuper.com/upload-document

Step 3

Receive confirmation from AustralianSuper. Once we receive your form, we'll write to you to confirm the amount you want to claim.

Step 4

Submit your tax return. You'll need to state the amount you want to claim as a tax deduction in the supplementary section of your tax return.

To claim a tax deduction for personal super contributions, we must receive your Notice of intent to claim a tax deduction for personal super contributions form (online or pdf form) before you withdraw your super benefit, transfer any part of your account to an account based pension, split any of your super with your spouse or close your account. We can't accept your request for a tax deduction after an application for a benefit payment or to open an account based pension has been processed.
